

POLITICAL SCIENCE

Understand Power, Governance and Political Culture

Huron
AT WESTERN

DISCOVER WHAT DRIVES

PEOPLE

AND NATIONS

POLITICAL SCIENCE EXPLORES THE MANY FACES OF POWER IN SOCIETY, INVESTIGATES BIG POLITICAL IDEAS AND VISIONS, WORLD-TRANSFORMING MOVEMENTS INSPIRED BY POLITICAL IDEALS, THE DAILY LIVES OF POLITICAL ORGANIZATIONS AS WELL AS THE INNER MECHANISMS OF GOVERNMENTS.

In the study of Political Science, we recognize many of today's most urgent and complex public challenges require new forms of ethical leadership that combine social justice and inclusive decision-making.

THE HURON ADVANTAGE

With our small class sizes and dedicated faculty, we challenge our students to be Leaders with Heart by investigating both the human struggles of political conflict as well as the creative forces of political cooperation – from the local to the global.

“Studying Political Science empowers you to develop a holistic understanding of how the world works. Huron’s unique experiential learning opportunities and personalized learning environments enable you to develop real relationships with students and professors. These relationships really come into play when you’re applying for jobs and graduate school. Through this program, you will learn many different things and broaden your horizons to become a global thinker.”

WHAT DO OUR GRADS DO?

Among Canada's most visible Leaders with Heart, including Members of Parliament, are graduates from Huron's Political Science department who are found across a range of sectors and platforms.

Career paths span the civil service, media, private and non-profit sectors. Huron Political Science graduates frequently pursue advanced study in Political Science or Legal Studies to build rewarding careers as university professors and lawyers. Other popular career choices include:

- Policy Analyst/Public Servant
- Politician/Political Staff
- Market Analyst/Foreign Service Officer/Diplomat
- Management Consultant/Economic Development Officer
- Professor/Lawyer
- Market Research/Opinion Polling
- Journalist/Media Relations
- Community Development/Urban Planning
- Advocacy/Lobbyist

"Political Science was the most natural extension of my love of real stories. The subject matter leapt off the page at me, in bright, bold colours. It's a living entity, as it constantly changes and evolves, and the program at Huron provides you with a solid foundation to recognize the intricate patterns that form - and inform - one another."

TRAVEL STUDY

The Political Science Department leads a field-study course to Rwanda, taking 15-20 students for a first-hand exploration of the politics of genocide and the process of reconciliation. Conducting original political research, students meet with a range of non-governmental and governmental organizations and travel to various sites of memorialization.

The Political Science Department also leads an experiential learning opportunity to Detroit, Michigan where students explore the relationship between various forms of public art, popular culture and urban revitalization. Students engage with the world-renowned Heidelberg Project in the heart of the city.

Political Science students are also encouraged to participate in one of the many international exchanges offered at Huron, including China University Politics and the Law Summer Institute and Human Rights and Law.

- Management & Organizational Studies
- Global Great Books

“Through my teaching, I aim to expand my students’ political horizons, encouraging them to challenge themselves by studying new and unfamiliar political practices. One of the most effective ways to do this is through experiential learning, which is why I take students to Rwanda to study the peacebuilding and reconciliation methods in place there. It’s often difficult to understand political systems by just being in the classroom; it’s so helpful to talk to the people who are actively working on and have lived the issues we’re studying.”

GET INVOLVED!

Huron Political Science Students’ Association hosts events to engage Huron’s Political Science students and politically-minded students in politics. Through speakers, social events and discussions, the club emphasizes the importance of politics in our lives.

BEYOND THE CLASSROOM

From the first day of classes, Political Science students are invited to participate in the research process and explore learning opportunities beyond the classroom.

- Many courses include options for students to conduct their own research and Huron's faculty-to-student ratio permits full supervision of such initiatives.
- As their professors' research assistants, students also develop a range of analytical, communication and leadership skills that provide an excellent foundation for graduate studies and professional careers.
- In recent years, students have been involved with faculty research projects, investigating topics such as urban planning, multiculturalism, globalization and the environment, and the history and theory of utilitarianism.
- Political Science students have undertaken major independent research projects, including the Honours Specialization thesis and CURL studies, with faculty supervision on topics such as immigrant political representation, genocide and reconciliation, urban planning and governance, and art-based research in tackling homelessness.
- Political science students have participated in a variety of community-based learning opportunities including Policy Internships, Provincial Model Parliament and Federal Daughters of the Vote.
- On a biannual basis, Political Science students have the opportunity to attend an undergraduate conference in Political Theory held at universities across North America.
- Such research and experiential learning opportunities position Huron Political Science students to compete for prestigious internship programs and research placements with governments in Canada and internationally.
- Our students also have opportunities to participate in City Studio courses that link classroom teaching with the London municipal government. Joint projects include neighbourhood planning and urban policy.
